This seminar is organized by the research groups to explore various approaches to study or design urban landscapes, focusing on infrastructures, specifically referring to streets, boulevards, highways, ports, bridges, tunnels and their connections or intersections, all operating at the intermediate scale, and their relation to collectivity. This seminar seeks to pronounce critical discourses related to the making of collectivity and collective spaces in a contemporary context.